to whom it may concern:

i strongly disagree with the decision made for settlement concerning microsoft issuing new computer software and hardware to underprivileged schools.

i do not think this will be a strong enough punishment for the monopoly microsoft. this will only insure that their product will fall into the hands of our youth, who are our future and will equal more sales for microsoft in the long run.

if school children learn how to operate microsoft products and have access to them, they will be more likely to purchase these products and to influence their parents to do so.

please take these comments into thought in your settlement decision.
